LATEST BY CABLE.

LONDON, June 6.—(Glasgow) is receiving popular demonstrations in Wales.

LONDON, June 7.—Trouble between England and Russia over the Afghan Boundary question is again threatened.

LONDON, June 8.—Glasgow has completed his tour in Wales and returned to England. He met with a favorable reception.

OTHER POINTS.

QU'APPÉLÉ, June 9.—The McLeish murders are still a large, but their capture is certain within 48 hours.

The report that Chief Piapot and his band had left the reserve to join and raise hostilities is without foundation. The Indian agent granted him and four families a few days leave to visit relations on the Assiniboine reserve. All Piapot's braves are busy putting in crops on the reserve and the Indians in this and Qu'Appelle district are quiet.

The constable who captured the supposed murderer of Smith of Salt Plain, left for the local lake where the capture was effected, to see more evidence. The evidence already obtained consists in the fact that this Indian and his brother had lived with Smith, that they had been poor and that the man who had been captured had been seen in the neighborhood of Smith's place. The constable expects to find a pocket book belonging to Smith which he has been ordered to keep in his possession but which was not found on his person when captured. He has $40 about him.

QU'APPÉLÉ, June 6.—The police are seeking to surround the McLeish murderers. It is possible a reward will be offered for their capture.

MONTREAL, June 6.—The recent reductions of Pacific Coast rates from Winnipeg apply to all stations west of Morley.

INDIAN HEAD, June 8.—The sun dance is in full blast. The Indians have a very large camp and everything is going quickly as a ordinary occasion. Chief Jack who proved himself very loyal during the rebellion and who has been carrying out the government's instructions forbidding the old heathen practices on such occasions in making braves has greatly strengthened the hands of the authorities. Piapot is now forwarder victims for torture and instead of the old religious rites being still observed by a regular party, ensued between Inspector Taylor, Chief Piapot and Chief Jack. They went as far as striking the young braves and drew their knives but Piapot finally backed down, and was greatly dissatisfied.

QU'APPÉLÉ, June 8.—No further intelligence relative to the pursuit of the murderers.

REGINA, June 8.—The Northwest Act will be amended so that the whole of the Territories will be represented in the council. There will also be a reduced number of nominated members.

INDIAN BURIAL CUSTOMS.

Written specially for THE HERALD.

WHEN AMERICA, the valiant leader of the Huns, suddenly died, his faithful warriors rode around his grave singing a funeral song. They cut off a part of their hair, washed their faces with wounds, and then saw the captive who had dug the grave. The spirits taken in battle were thrown into the grave and then the warriors engaged in excessive mirth. Had the name of a noble Indian not been written instead of "AMERICA," the above would have been a true representation of burial customs among some Indian tribes. Several modes of burial have been practiced by the native tribes. There are several kinds of mounds descriptive of the customs of the mound builders of prehistoric America. The Ishpishimons of British Columbia in former years, and the latter place the body on some sticks of wood and it is then consumed. Should the person die in a hut, it is consumed with all that it contains. Some of the Alaskan Indians entombed their dead, as the mummies are still to be found in the mummy caves. Some of the native tribes erect scaffolds or place their deceased relatives in the clothes of trees and on the top of some lofty rock. Sometimes an eagle is selected and again a secluded spot where a lodge is pitched and the corpse placed within. Graves are also made on the top of the ground and small houses built over them. Bravery in death was one of the characteristics of the German Barbarians as it is of the American Indians. A life spent in arms and a glorious death in battle were held to be the best preparation for a joyous immortality. (Ipswich, the famous missionary, tells us of the tortures of an Iroquois prisoner. While his enemies feasted and before he sang his death song, he said to them, "My brothers, I am going to die, make merry around me with good heart; I am a man; I fear neither death nor your tortures.")

Some tribes killed two young men when a chief died, that their spirits might accompany him by the way. Wrapped in his buffalo robe or blanket the warrior is borne to his grave, generally accompanied by very few of his friends. Beside him in the lodge, grave or coffin, are placed the robes of the deceased, pipes, tobacco and many things of greater or less value are deposited there. Various reasons have been given by students of American antiquity, all of which are of some value and have some truth in them. These things are placed there to protect the bereaved from sadness at gazing upon the robes of the departed and to keep the conscience clear from a charge of falsifying the dead. The best explanation is that found in the native religion of the Indians. They believe that everything in nature is possessed of a spirit and that the spirits of the articles devoted to the deceased depart with him and are used in the spirit world. Thus when you point to the goods lying at the grave after many days, the natives will tell you that the substance remains, but the spirits live on the spirit of the things. The souls of hatchets and pipes, horses and dogs, go to the "happy hunting ground" for their master's use. We find this same idea of objects of souls amongst the Arabs and Gauls. The camel of the Arab was tied near the grave of his master, that he might there perch and follow him to the spirit world. The Gauls often-times contracted debts which were made payable in the state of future existence. When any person died, letters were thrown upon the funeral pile that the deceased might carry the wishes of the living to his relatives and friends in the world beyond. When a chief died, all his valuables and sometimes his servants were buried with him. When the daughter of Spotted Tail, head chief of the Brule Sioux, died, her two milk white ponies were killed and their heads and tails nailed on the coffin. The Indians of our plains killed horses in like manner, but the advent of the whites has caused a change, and now along with the numerous things placed beside the deceased, part of the manes, tails and forelocks of his favorite horses is deposited there. As the Chippewa mother clipped a lock of hair from her departed daughter's head, she said: "I know my daughter's hair will be restored to me, by this lock of hair I will discover her, for I shall take it with me." In this she referred to her own departure to the land of spirits. A striking peculiarity of some tribes is found in the existence of omens, as amongst the Hurons, which were connected with the ceremony of the "Feast of the Dead," or the "Feast of Souls." At stated periods, every eight or ten years, all those who had died since the last performance of the feast were brought by friends and relations, in a very solemn manner, to the place of burial, a large circular pit or cavity was dug, into which were cast all the bodies of the dead. Each person solemnly took up a handful of earth for preservation. After the mounds and excavations, the time was spent in dancing and singing debaucheries. Many of these burial customs are to be found among the Indians of the St. Lawrence and Georgian Bay. The Indians have sung his death song preparatory to death. Upon the death of a chief among the Six Nations Indians, a song of condolence was sung, which "contains the names, laws and customs of their renowned ancestors, and praying to God that their deceased brother might be blessed with happiness in his other state." The women, at sunrise and sunset, for three days, go to the graves singing the songs of the dead. The Puyublat women mourn for three or four months. "Our Pi in Indian women cut off their hair, one of their fingers by the first joint, and make bloody gashes on their legs. The male adults of the Apaches cut their hair short as a sign of mourning. Sad indeed is the wail of the Indian mother for the dear ones they have lost. When a chief dies among the Iroquois, a party of young men go out in search of hair. Formerly they sought for scalp but when the whites became numerous in the country they became contented with taking the hair. Finally they had to submit to paying it. On these occasions they were not allowed to touch their hair until they had returned successful from the expedition. The native tribes are very much afraid of the dead. In some the coffin containing the body of the deceased is taken out through a hole made specially in the wall for its exit, and it is carried, turned around, the head at full speed, that the spirit of the dead forgetting the place it passed through, may not return to injure the living. The Indians express a fear similar to this. They believe that the spirits go abroad at night and they are afraid to go out. When passing a grave in the darkness they will run or shout that the spirit may be driven away. Several Indian tribes turn down all the huts in the vicinity and others remove them. This is done from a belief that the spirits will return to their former home, and if seen by any near relative, something serious will happen. They are afraid to reside in the neighborhood as the spirit will return and seek a companion among his relations, who will soon die. Superstition lingers around their belief. Upon removal to a new location, should a person die, it is attributed to something mysterious there, and they must speedily remove. Should any special medicine be given or any particular religious rite be performed, or the advent of a new crop of people take place, a short time prior to an epidemic, these things are supposed to be the cause. There is an old legend of Devil's lake (Minnesota) in the western water which states that many years ago a terrible battle was fought there. As the contending parties struggled they threw each other over the crazy walls into the deep water. The night was horrible, from the large number of bodies lying there, that the Indians gave it this particular name of Minnow-waukan, and they said that they could hear the voices of the spirits as they passed by on the other side of the mountain. They believed that the water was possessed of a mysterious power and they refused to eat the fish and drink the water. The name of a deceased relative is always mentioned with respect, some tribes never mentioning it and others only in a whisper. Lotuses and great piles were erected over some graves showing the clan to which deceased belonged. In the temples of the Mexican Indians small images of the deceased were placed as their peculiar household gods. The influence of civilization are rapidly changing the customs of the Indians and they will soon be things of the past.

ROSE'S REVIEW.

MURDER!

LATEST ACCOUNTS OF THE McLEAN, POOLE AND McLEISH MURDERS.

The McLean Murder.

WILHELM, June 4.—The coronor's jury in the case of the murder of McLean at Whitewood, brought in a verdict of wilful murder against parties unknown. The Dr.'s post mortem elicited the fact that McLean was shot in the nose, the bullet entered his nose and passed through the head, shattering the back point of the skull. The Dr. claims that it was unexplosive. The cartridge is similar to those used by half breeds and Indians. The condition of the skull indicates that the murderer must have been close to McLean when he shot him. Indians are reported to have been seen on the reserve close to where McLean was killed. The general opinion is that McLean met his fate by Indians or half breeds, others advance the theory that McLean may have discovered the murderers of McLeish, in hiding on the Indian reserve, as the police were in hot pursuit of them at the time and to prevent discovery they killed him. The only thing missing belonging to McLean was his hat. Parties have made a thorough search but can find no trace of it. There are no evidences that McLean had a struggle. He appeared to have dropped dead on the ground where he was shot and the murderer placed the axe which McLean had, under his shoulder, presumably to lead the public to the belief that he met his fate by accident. A special train left Regina this evening for Whitewood with a large detachment of police to work up the Poole and McLeish murders.

Investigation as to the Poole Murder.

The latest particulars respecting the murder of Samuel Poole are: A coronor's inquest was held at Summit, yesterday. The jury brought in a verdict of wilful murder by some party or parties unknown. The coronor, Dr. Henderson, has just returned, and reports the murder to be a horrible and brutal affair. There is evidence of Poole having had a severe struggle for life. The murderer or murderers first endeavored to strangle him with a strap which Poole wore as a belt; they fastened the strap around his neck and then tied him to a tree about 75 yards from his home. But finding he was not likely to die in a short time they took a stick out of the hay rack near by, and literally pummeled the back of his skull to a jelly. Great excitement prevails and there is no doubt to the murderers. The only thing missing in Poole's house is his gun. His value was not open and the knife with which it was done was left beside the value. It is thought that the murder was not committed for plunder.

Arrest at Grand Forks.

QU'APPÉLÉ, June 4.—A man named McKeown, suspected of being one of the gang who killed McLeish, was arrested at Grand Forks last night by Mounted Police, together with an Indian who is supposed to have aided Smith, in the Salt Plain, and another who is suspected of horse stealing.

McLeish Murder.

INDIAN HEAD, June 4.—Reports reaching here last evening that Racette and one of his sons implicated in the murder of McLeish, were in hiding in Qu'Appelle, north of here. A mounted party consisting of eleven young men organized and left here at two o'clock determined to capture the fugitives. At about half past four they surrounded the half breed's house where the parties were reported hiding and saw a man disappear seeking to escape. After searching the huts the party returned here at 10 o'clock, having traveled over thirty miles. A J. Oment, a merchant here, is friendly with the fugitives and was sent to advise him to deliver the father in return of his life and that the young Racettes threaten to kill him.

PARENTS AND TEACHERS.

The Necessity of Hearty Co-Operation Between Them.

The fact is conceded by those who properly understand or appreciate the laboriousness of a teacher's position that his remuneration is frequently incommensurate with the amount of work required of him, and no rightly thinking man will, I believe, dispute the assertion that so long as the teacher can command little more for his service than is paid to an ordinary laborer, just so long will the cause of education be retarded, and no one will have the right to complain if our schools are conducted in a negligent and unsatisfactory manner.

However, in an effort to correct the evils existing in our systems of instruction, there is something else to be considered besides dollars and cents.

The conscientious instructor, to be "college professor" or "country pedagogue," is not an automaton that drags listlessly through six hours of labor per day, after the fashion of a horse in a treadmill, contented merely to draw his salary and to retain his place; he is a man of noble principles, who realizes the responsibility of his position; his interests are identical with those of his pupils, and he will bend every energy for their advancement.

To such a man the business of teaching is fraught with many cares, for, being in thorough sympathy with his pupils, he not only wishes over their successes, but also grieves with them when they fail; thus does he continually interpose between pleasure and sorrow. Where is the individual who can contemplate this veritable hero and not deeply sympathize with his professorial endeavors? Justly does he deserve both adequate pecuniary compensation for his labors and the hearty encouragement and co-operation of his patrons. There exists in the minds of many parents the erroneous idea that they have no part to perform in their children's education, save to pay for their tuition, while the teacher is expected to do the rest. He is required to bear the brunt of pupils' irregular attendance, he must make up for lack of home training and instruction, and yet, in the face of these obstacles, if he, by the end of the session, shall not have carried the child through two or three sets of text books, he is considered derelict in the discharge of duty and much dissatisfaction is felt. I do not advocate parental dictation either in the discipline or mode of instruction in schools, for this would be an unwarranted assumption of authority, and no teacher of spirit will ever brook such interference.

However, private suggestions from patrons, if kindly given, are always in order and would be gratefully received.

Moreover, a parent ought to manifest a genuine interest in the studies and progress of his child. Just here I would say to all parents if in the preparation of lessons at home your children should encounter obstacles that they cannot surmount, and should come to you for assistance, do not tell them you have no time to be bothered and that they must carry their difficulties to the teacher, who is paid to attend to their wants; but cheerfully help them out of the trouble, talk to them about their studies, incite them to more diligent application, and let them feel that you are concerned in their intellectual as well as physical welfare. Above all, impress upon them the vital importance of punctual attendance at school and the necessity of strict obedience to the teacher's commands.

A little time thus employed will not only greatly facilitate the teacher's labors and conduce to their success, but it will yield you a rich dividend in the more rapid advancement of your child.

May the day be not far distant when parents and teachers, throughout the country, shall learn the importance of greater co-operation.—W. G. Fox in Current.

THE BARREL AND THE KEG.

None of Us of Value to the World When We Stand Alone.

On a certain occasion a Barrel which was half full of rain-water found itself beside a Keg of Brandy. There was plenty of room for both, but the Keg could not repress its Vanity and soon remarked:

"Singular that it takes such a stout Barrel to hold such weak Liquid."

"And it is singular how much Quarreling, Murder and General Rascality can be cooped up into such small bulk," retorted the Barrel.

"I've got the strength of ten full barrels of Water."

"Yes, but all good men detest you."

They scolded away for half an hour, taunting each other with having lived in Chicago and St. Louis, and finally agreed to leave it to the Owner of the store. The Keg stated the case and asked for a decision.

"Why as to that," he answered, "You contain a very good quality of Fusill Oil, and the Barrel holds about the same quantity of rain-water, with Chemicals dissolved. Each by you are of very little value, but pour the Fusill into the Barrel and behold the result will be gallons of First Quality Fuel Oil."—The End.

INSANITY.

Long Devotion to Any Subject Likely to Result in Unbalanced Mind.

"It is odd," says an expert in insanity, "that when supposedly insane people say they are sane it is the best proof to many who are in charge of asylums that they are insane. And it is on record as the judgment of certain asylum-keepers that there is no surer proof of a patient's sanity than the acknowledgment on his part that he is or has been insane."

Doubtless there is good ground for these conclusions; but one would naturally think that the sane person would be the last one to falsely acknowledge present or past insanity, whatever the cunning of the other class might inspire it to say or do. Recently an expert in this city, who had been prominent in a case of alleged insanity, was afflicted in this way himself, and he is now in the asylum, while the man against whom he testified is enjoying his freedom and nobody is the worse for it. Is it not possible that men who practically devote themselves to this subject unavoidably acquire queer notions, and perhaps irrational ones? The brain is very delicately constructed, and long devotion to any one matter, whether it be insanity or something else, is quite likely to result in what is called the crankish or the unbalanced mind.

The Rochester papers have long accounts of the case of a woman who was carried to an asylum apparently without the slightest legitimate authority. Two men found her at work in her house and roughly ordered her to go with them. Of course she refused. She fled from the house, and they caught her and brought her back. She struggled, but they conquered. She pleaded for mercy, and they cursed her as a vicious subject. She begged them to bring her husband, promising that if they complied and he acquiesced in her removal she would go willingly. She was shown no mercy, but carried off by force, apparently by the husband's order. It seems that she was taken to the asylum, as she has written a letter which is remarkably sane as the production of a violent victim in an asylum, and is dated at that institution; but what villain might not be perjured by a bad man upon an eccentric, or even an extremely level-headed, wife in this way, provided he is resolved to get rid of her? A year or so ago the newspapers of the northern part of the State told the story of a woman apparently taken possession of by two blacklegs on the Central Railroad. They said she was insane. She begged the passengers to protect her, but the story of insanity was believed. She wished to telegraph to her friends, but this was refused. She was taken off the cars at Utica, and has not been heard from since. Probably the story is untrue; but how easily this manner of outrage might be perpetrated upon a sane woman. The allegation of insanity shuts out all defense. The victim is friendless and an outcast the moment she is charged with insanity. If she resists she is dangerously insane. If she protests she is emotionally irrational. If she is silent enough despair she has come to a temporary and rather satisfactory realization of her condition.

Entrance to a lunatic asylum is too easily effected. Once the victim is there he is completely helpless. Old cases are forgotten and new cases rapidly grow and compound upon each other. Is generally or often, but too often the friends are called, are personally or otherwise interested in the victim's confinement. To whom shall the sane occupant of a bedlam appeal? The stranger has no time to waste on strangers, and the relatives and friends are the ones who are responsible for the outrage. There are casual and regular investigations of the asylums, but how many of the investigators are competent or care to judge? The man charged with insanity is comparatively helpless, no matter how sane he may be. There ought to be some means to rectify this great and apparently growing evil.

Are now all Canada is awaiting breathless the result of the expedition sent from Regina to take the half-breed who murdered McLaughlin. ## THE SENATORSHIP

It will shortly be in order for the Dominion Government to nominate the Senators for the Territories, and the question of who will get the positions is exciting a good deal of interest in some quarters. The Government, we surmise, will not disregard the rights of the people of the Territories in this instance. Unless the Senators are to be chosen from among the residents of the Northwest they would be of little use to the Northwest. Better far to have no representation at all. Let the Government call good live Northwest men to the Senate and it will not only be doing a good thing for this country but for the Dominion generally.

We observe, with a great deal of satisfaction, that some of the leading journals in the east have connected the name of one of our most esteemed townsmen with the position. We refer to Mr. Arthur Ferland—a gentleman peculiarly adapted for such a position. He has been an active and successful merchant in the Northwest for several years, and is well known to entertain broad and liberal ideas on most subjects affecting the country and the various classes of our population. The two things most needful in a representative are practical knowledge and sound judgment, and Mr. Ferland possesses an abundance of both. While his appointment to the Senate would be particularly gratifying to his constituents, the French Canadians, and to the Catholics of the Northwest, he is popular among all classes and creeds, and all would be glad to welcome him back from the east as Senator Ferland.

The following highly gratifying letter has been received by The Herald, Canada Government Agency:

To Water St., Calgary, 15th May 1887.

Dear Sir:—I have to thank the Mayor and Council for copies of the Calgary Herald in which I have lately distributed for the best advantage. This means of advertising, in my judgment, is one of the most valuable that could be adopted. It is of course a matter of expense, but I would suggest that each of the Canadian Government Agencies should be supplied with a copy of the Herald. The leading business men are interested in such a plan should be adopted. There are some commercial agents who need English and who would have extracts from your paper translated. I am sure that the Herald is a valuable medium for the exchange of ideas.

I don't intend to be pleased if I can assist in furthering the interests of your district in which I have many old friends. I hope to pay a visit to the city in the near future.

Yours very truly,
J. D. DICK.

In future The Weekly Herald will be mailed regularly free of charge to the long list of subscribers given by Rev. Mr. Dyke in his letter. Calgary is indeed fortunate in having for a friend a gentleman occupying so important a position as Rev. Mr. Dyke. He will be warmly welcomed when he visits Calgary.

If we are to believe the telegraph and there is reasonable cause to doubt its reliability at all times, the appointment to the sheriffship of Northern Alberta is not Mr. Jas. A. Macmillan, of this town. Why is not a point that one is electedation by the powers that be. It was arranged and practically settled to the satisfaction of those who favored his appointment that he should get it, and it was fully expected that he would have been appointed before this. We are in a position to state that it was through no fault nor lack of exertion on the part of Mr. Davis that it is not so. All friends of the Government in this district emphatically protest against the treatment that we have received in this matter. We cannot see how the Government can justify the action it has taken.

The population of the British Empire has almost doubled during the fifty years of Her Majesty's reign. In 1837 it was 126,105,081. To-day it is 320,000,000 according to figures given by Mr. J. H. Long, principal of the College Institute. In a letter to the Mail Mr. Long says: "In your very interesting article on 'The Queen in the Mail of Tuesday you give the population of the British Empire as 257,000,000. Will you show me to draw your attention to the fact the estimate does not include the Federated States of India, or very recent additions to the Empire, e.g., British East Africa, or the independent States of India alone numbering some ten millions. It is very right, I think, that these should be included in the Empire, as they are actually situated under government, and as belonging to the British Empire, and as they are certain to become within a few years integral parts of the British Empire."

We often hear complaints about the telegraph office and we think that the company could well afford better accommodation to the citizens of Calgary. At present there is only one operator here and he has to attend to train work as well as general commercial and press business. We don't know just what revenue the company derives from commercial telegrams in this town, but it must be four or five hundred dollars a month, and the press business alone amounts to more than enough to pay office rent and operator salary. Under these circumstances the company should be able to give us a town office, in a central location on Stephen Avenue. We are sure the telegraph business would increase considerably if better facilities were offered. The chief cause of complaint is in having to wait so long at the office before the operator gets time to take your message. People who send telegrams don't like to wait ten or fifteen minutes to file them and, perhaps, see them stuck on a hook for an hour or two longer. There can be no doubt that messages would be received and despatched more expeditiously if the commercial and railroad offices were separated.

With the Lethbridge News kindly informing its anxious readers just what opinions it holds on the Indian Question. At one time it advocated the removal of the Indians from their present reserve. Now it admits that it may have erred in that respect and bitterly opposes the Herald's scheme of placing all the Indians on a large territory on the Red River. The News' only reason for opposing our scheme, so far as we can see, is because the proposition is an old one and was first given to the world some years ago by the Macleod Gazette. We are not disposed to know why the Gazette is so opposed to the News, but that doesn't affect the question in the least. As the Gazette never dreamed of such a scheme as we propose, though it did suggest, at one time, out of the largeness of its heart, the advisability of transferring the Indians to the far north, in the arctic region. But it is not the origin of the scheme which concerns us, it is the justice and humanity of it, in that it aimed at the preservation and civilization of the Indian race. We had before Governor Morley many years ago by Mr. Chas. N. Bell of Winnipeg—a gentleman who knows something of the Indians and of Northwest matters. We don't quite grasp the import of the News' historical inferences, but we still protest against removing the Indians or any other band of Indians from their present reserve until a suitable place is provided for them. To our readers we would say that we do not anticipate any serious result from the utterances of the News.

THE PROPOSED LOAN.

The proposition of the Council to borrow $40,000 for fire protection and public improvements will probably require some considerable amendment before it is submitted to the ratepayers. So far as we have been able to learn, the council do not require that amount of money and would not know what to do with it if they had it. The Tribune, speaking no doubt for some members of the Council, gives a statement of the moneys required for this year's improvements and expenses. It including various sums which are not absolutely necessary and others which there is not the remotest reason for including. The Tribune makes the expenditure for fire protection and public improvements run up to $31,695 and for current expenses $14,410. The latter sum whether increased or reduced, must be met by the year's taxes. If the annual duty of a grand to pay the current expenses from the current revenue so that the people can tell just what their municipal government is costing, and so that the succeeding council will have a clean slate to commence business with.

Then, according to the Tribune's estimate the expenditure which the proposed $40,000 loan is to cover is only $31,695. The idea of asking for a large amount that is apparently and absolutely unnecessary cannot be justified on any grounds, and we believe that the estimate can be reduced without injury to any of the town's interests, to $20,000 or even less. The improvements already made and under way are sufficient for this year, and there is no need of the larger sum we would stand the necessity of going back to the people again with another debenture by-law is a poor one at least. We fear that the people are not adverse to having something to say in regard to the expenditure of their money. At the present time, however, as much if not more than we require is borrowed.

As for current expenses, they will be easily met and the rate should be very low this year. By some remarkable system of financing the Tribune includes among the town's expenses $2,000 for sinking fund and $2,500 for interest on $40,000 debentures. The Tribune has never exhibited any great amount of astuteness in explaining anything, so we will not ask it to explain these items. It is needless to say that the town has no such expenses this year. Approximately, therefore, our current expenses will be $10,000, including $4,000 for school purposes. Revenue from license fees and fines will reduce the amount to $8,000, so that a rate of 7 mills on, say $1,200,000 assessment would be our rate of taxation this year.

Such a low rate would doubtless please the ratepayers beyond measure, but the question arises whether it would not be wiser to levy a higher rate this year and reduce the proposed debenture debt by the amount thus realized. Of course the practice of extending municipal expenditures over future generations is fascinating to the average mind but it is fraught with danger if carried to excess. The present landowners and ratepayers of Calgary even allowing for rapid growth, will continue to bear the bulk of the taxes for some years and a debenture debt will be almost as great a charge on them five or ten years hence as it is now. In any case it is a mortgage on the real property and must be paid sooner or later. "Pay as you go" is a good maxim for corporations as well as for individuals. It has been suggested, wisely or not we do not say, that the item of $3,000 for 1887 is in debt to be provided for from the year's revenue. It has been pointed out that a large portion of that sum is for salaries and other "current" expenses and that therefore it should not be made a tax on those who settle in the town hereafter. In the minds of many it will be a reproach to the town to hand the current expenses of the old residents down to newcomers in such a cruel manner. Others think it will serve a useful purpose as a warning to future councils.

One other point deserves attention, viz., the manner in which the debentures are to be issued. We infer from the Tribune that it is the intention to provide a sinking fund to pay off the debentures at maturity. Such a plan is objectionable for many reasons which we need not mention now. By the better way is to pay back the loan from year to year in such proportion of principal and interest as to equalize the amount over the whole time. In other words, it will be a good deal more sensible to pay back $2,000 a year than to keep it as a sinking fund earning much less interest for them. To our readers we would say that we do not anticipate any serious result from the utterances of the News.

We look for a full and free discussion, in a friendly and honest spirit, of these matters at the meeting on Wednesday evening.

PUBLIC MEETING

THE RATEPAYERS DISCUSS THE PROPOSED LOAN.

Complete Financial Statement by the Mayor—General Demand for Waterworks—About thirty or forty ratepayers attended the meeting in Boynton hall last night.

for the purpose of discussing the proposed loan. Mayor King occupied the chair and announced the object of the meeting. He then called on the treasurer and chairman of committees to make reports.

Mr. Braithwaite, the treasurer, reported the expenditures for this year to have been $11,232.35; receipts, including $9,000 borrowed from the bank, $12,015.45, leaving a balance of $783.10 on hand.

Coun. Martin, chairman of the works committee, reported that the following expenditures were required in his department:

Sidewalks	$3,500
Elbow Bridge	3,400
Grading streets	1,000
Stock yards	361
Engineer's salary	200

Total, $8,461. Total, $8,461. Mr. Martin said the above sum would include additional sidewalks on Atlantic Avenue, from the post office to Dowdney and Brinkwater streets, and other streets from the Exchange to Gillies and from King's to McIntosh streets; and on McIntosh street, three or four blocks. He expected that the amount would be able to do with $30,000 in debentures.

Coun. Shotton, chairman of the fire and water committee, reported the following expenditures for the year:

Total for fire bell	$9,711.00
Engine	4,400.00
Track and ladder and other materials	600.00
Track and ladder	700.00
Two large tanks	1,500.00
Additional hose and reel	1,100.00
Other miscellaneous expenditures	211.00

Total, $12,521.00. It is estimated to take the chemical engine $2,000 or so will be required. Mr. Shotton thought provision should also be made for lighting the town. Additional tanks would also be needed on section 16 and south of the track. He also pointed out the necessity of having the engineer at the fire hall day and night. He hoped the people would give them $30,000.

Coun. Martin spoke in justification of building the Elbow bridge, showing that those on the east side were entitled to something and that the town was perfectly secure in regard to taxing the land over there. No fair minded person would say it was an injustice.

Coun. Edin, chairman of the health and market committee, said the expenses of his department were $551, which had been spent for the weigh scales, from which would be derived a large revenue.

The Mayor reported the following for his department:

Police and relief	$1,799.40
Executive and finance	2,789.13

The Mayor then presented a summary of the town's liabilities as follows:

Notes discounted	$9,000.00
Balance due O'Keefe	2,400.00
Beecher's claim	300.00
Other claims	1,155.83

16. He was tired of tanks. A good system of waterworks was what he wanted. Mr. Jones spoke at some length in favor of waterworks, showing that they would save a lot of money to the people.

Coun. Martin felt that it was very desirable to have waterworks and at the time the tanks were decided on they had no choice.

Mr. Longhead criticized the actions of the council in regard to sidewalks, holding that a frontage tax should be imposed where the sidewalk only benefited a few. He also pointed out that we had all the fire apparatus necessary except the small items of water. He hoped no more money would be spent in experiments, but that a thoroughly competent engineer be employed. It was premature for the council to spend money for such things as the Elbow bridge, while it was needed for their purposes and he was of opinion that the council did not have a legally binding agreement with the property holders east of the Elbow. Regarding the bridge, salaries and expenses could be greatly reduced, especially law cases.

Coun. Martin explained that the sidewalks were being built to frontage tax, and that the bridge was perfectly secure in its agreement to the Elbow bridge.

Capt. Orr criticized the latter statement and said he was possessed. His property was now being laid out and would be completed shortly.

Other speakers followed by Messrs. Tait, L. H. and others, in favor of waterworks, the result of which will be the building of a waterworks, the town of Calgary.

The meeting then broke up. The council was asked for an official expression in regard to the proposed loan.

A Meeting of the Sheep Growers' Association.

A meeting of the Alberta Wool Growers' Association was held in the Regal Hotel last evening.

There were present, Frank White, President, and Messrs. W. Rutherford, W. Anderson, David Thompson, D. Kennedy, H. D. Winters, A. E. Bannister, Wm. Martin, James Thompson, and George Hume Johnston.

The minutes of last meeting were read and confirmed.

The secretary reported having corresponded with the C. P. R. as to rates to Montreal; the rate quoted was $300 for a car or 20,000 pounds or less.

Moved by Mr. Johnston, seconded by Mr. Bannister, that the Association send a sample of wool, say 200 pounds, to England, to ascertain the value of our clip as compared with that of other colonies, and suggested that Mr. Rutherford prepare such sample to represent the whole district clip; the association to pay for the wool and be reimbursed by the price received in England. Carried.

Proposed by Mr. Johnston, seconded by Mr. Rutherford, that Mr. Godsal be elected a member of the Association. Carried.

Proposed Mr. Winters, seconded Mr. Godsal, that, in regard to the sale of wool, each member of this Association try what bids he can get for his own clip and report to the association through the Secretary; that no wool be sold before the 15th of July, and also, that samples of each clip in Calgary before that time. Carried.

Moved Mr. Martin, seconded Mr. Rutherford, that the Secretary be directed to send a circular to wool buyers, intimating that, on the 15th of July the wool growers of Alberta would be in Calgary with samples of the clip and would meet buyers, also, that no wool would be sold previously to that date. Carried.

The question of dumping sheep was then discussed at length by the meeting.

Moved Mr. Rutherford, seconded Mr. Martin, that the fees for membership be paid on or before the 15th of July to each year. Carried.

The meeting then adjourned.

The next meeting of the Association will be held in Calgary on the 15th of July, next, at 8 o'clock.

RANGE.

Particulars of the Ottertail Fire—A Train Has a Narrow Escape—Fire at Banff.

BANFF, June 4.—On Monday night a fire broke out in the back hall of a hotel, northwest of the station, but no damage was sustained. The fire then spread to the track and across towards the station, and the post office and buildings in the vicinity were in considerable danger but the people present ran on the ground and all the difficulty was overcome. The C. P. R. men also gave assistance, and the government men under the direction of Mr. John Connor, first ranger, fought the flames all day and towards evening had them under control. Next morning a heavy snow storm came on which subsequently turned into rain and ended the danger.

In consequence of the flood in the Bow and the number of logs of the Elm Chair Co. which were coming down the river it was feared for a time that the question would be carried away, and Mr. Stewart had one end of the bridge raised and has a body of men on night and day passing the logs through so that there is nothing to fear now from that quarter. The railway bridge, however, did not fare quite so well, on Wednesday night the bridge over the Devil's Creek near Anthracite was reported unsafe, and the bridge over the Bow between Anthracite and Canmore had one of the piers carried away and some of the others shifted. The passengers and baggage on the express had to be transhipped at these points for a couple of days before all right now.

The express running from the west on Tuesday night had a narrow escape from being crossing the Ottertail creek. The bush on both sides of the track was on fire and also the bridge after the engine passed over, the fire entered the extension from the head and the engine got off the track and the cars which were left standing in the midst of the fire and smoke also took fire, but as soon as possible they were pushed back to a place of safety and the flames extinguished. The train which came from the west last night was made up at Donald, as several washouts are reported further west.

Mr. J. D. Moulton is very unwell and continued to his bed.

—A Baptist Church at Park River, in Dakota, has devised a new scheme to raise money. A liberal member donated a large tract of land to it, and the people got up a plowing bee. Next season the church will have seven thousand bushels of wheat if the weather is propitious. — Chicago Herald.

—The result of the recent election of members of the corporation of Yale College is as follows: For the term of six years William M. Harris received 2,243 votes, Mason Young 160 votes, and William W. Farram 76 votes. For the term of four years to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Henry B. Harrison, William W. Farram received 1,800 votes, Mason Young 1,435, and S. C. Beck 503 votes.

"LATE WITH."

An Interesting Judicial Decision by an Eastern Court.

It is a very common practice for a man starting in business to announce himself on his sign and business cards as "late with" so and so, his former employer. Has a person any right to do this? Can he be prevented by legal means from so using the name of his former employer?

An opinion on this novel and interesting question has just been rendered by Judge Westbrook, of the Supreme Court in this State. A jeweler who had been employed in a jewelry store opened a shop of his own in the same town. On his sign and business cards he used the words "late with James P. Van Wyck." The latter complained that the effect of this announcement would be to take away his customers and injure his business. There was no allegation of fraud. Judge Westbrook holds that the defendant had no right to make such use of the name of his former employer. He says: "Nothing is more completely the property of a man than his name. No person can use it without the owner's consent. The use of plaintiff's name to make conspicuous the rival business and name of the defendant is a clear violation of the property rights of the plaintiff."

Judge Westbrook does not cite any authority or precedent in support of this view. He reaches his conclusion by reasoning. We think the conclusion wrong and the reasoning unsound. When a person has been for a long or a considerable time in the service of a business house or firm widely and invariably known that fact raises a presumption of his capability to carry on the same business for himself. It is a fact which, in the absence of fraud or unfair dealing, he has a right to announce to the public. In music or art it would seem ridiculous to deny to a person the right truthfully to represent himself or herself as the pupil of a well-known teacher or artist. The principle is the same in business.

This view of the law has been taken by our Court of Appeals. A firm of dentists dissolved partnership. One continued business in the same place, the other opening another office. The Court of Appeals held that the former had no right to represent himself as successor to. "But," said the court, "he may lawfully describe himself as formerly or late of that firm. He would thus state simply a fact belonging to his own life, as much so as if he were to give the time or place of his birth, the name of his father or instructor, or the college from which he graduated. All this might be done in good faith." — N. Y. Era.

—The familiar poem, "Old Oaken Bucket," was written by Samuel Woodworth in 1819, just after he had drunk water from a bucket at a well in Cromwell, Conn., which was on the premises of the late Captain James Riley. The poet was then teaching a district school on Prospect Hill in that town. — Harvard Post.

The dance given by the Fire Brigade in their room last night was a grand one. About thirty couples joined in the evening and the large room was filled with merry-makers. The hall was lit up and the floor was in motion that the dancers could not see up their heads to break up the hall till after three o'clock this morning. The dancing started off with the University Circle and ended up with "Sir Roger," no programme was made up, as the intention was to have a social evening and do away with as much formality as possible. The fire has established a name that will make every dance or entertainment they get up in the future a success; every one who was there last night speaks highly of the country of their hosts and their efforts to make the evening a pleasant one to all present.

Last week Stewart Brothers missed the calves out of their land and suspecting that the Indians had stolen them, rode to a camp where some of the Indians had been and located a short time later. On arriving they immediately instituted a thorough search, to which the Indians raised no objections till they came to a loaded cart, when they wished to interfere. One of the Stewart's, however, drew his revolver and telling his brother to continue the search to understand that he would shoot the first one who made any move. The search was successful and the three calves were found in the cart. As they were very young and after a long ride the two brothers were on the point of returning home when they heard the calling of the animals in a clump of bushes. They rode towards them when three mounted Indians suddenly left the bush and started on the gallop across the prairie. Mr. Stewart drew his gun and aimed the bullet and riding back saw the men and horse, however, quickly reappeared and disappeared down a canon where the brothers only too glad to regain their property, let them go unmolested. Mr. Fullerton also saw two Indians driving off a couple of his calves but as soon as they were observed they made tracks and left their ill-gotten spoils behind. If the police won't keep the Indians on their feet they seem to be making around their stock.

Mr. Hoyt, manager of the Alberta Lumber Company, expects his mill plant up to day. It was 100 horse power and with a circular will cut about 50,000 feet a day; with a gang he calculates that 100,000 feet is within the limit. $1,000 pounds of freight will have to be loaded from Calgary to the mill site, so some of our transfers should get the benefit. The location shown is all that could be desired; it lies about four miles from the timber belt, near the mouth of the Little Red Deer and about six miles from the main trail. If enterprise meant success the Alberta Lumber Company should make a big stake.

Mr. Brady arrived from Ontario last night with his stock. There were fifteen head in all. One of the horses died soon after leaving the train, but the rest though a little stiff are not much the worse for their long ride. The Methodist church was crowded last evening with a highly interested audience, for lecture by Rev. Dr. Williams, a rich treat and opened the eyes of a good many as to the fields traversed by advanced thought at the present day. New thoughts, new theories were given forth by the venerable theologian, all in support of his truths, and a power of strength was imparted to his hearers. Dr. Williams ranks among the for most thinkers of the times. The chair was occupied by Rev. Mr. Hetta, and a hearty vote of thanks was passed to the lecturer at the close.

A general meeting of the Turt Association was held in Ligonier's block last evening. Present, John Lingham, president; Chas. Watson, treasurer; George Munroe, secretary; Messrs. Rowe, Riley, Mac, Bannerman, Wan, Ford, and others. After considerable discussion it was decided to hold a fall meeting in the fall. The directors will meet this week when particulars will be made public. The secretary was instructed to write to the Board of Directors on the matter of incorporation. The trustees of the Bow river will be surveyed at once and put in good condition for next year's sports. A question of a meeting on the first of July was fully discussed and it was decided that the Association would do nothing this year as a basis, but if the citizens were in favor of the matter they would do all in their power, individually, to make it a success. The meeting then adjourned.

SASKATCHEWAN HERALD: Some of the eastern papers are doing Peter Smith, lately murdered near Touchwood Hill, an injustice in seeking to identify him with the Smith supposed to have been concerned in the mail robbery at Humboldt a year ago. It was not the Smith suspected.

The Deputy Minister of the Interior, Mr. A. M. Burgess, and Mrs. Burgess, arrived from the Banff spring this morning, and are at present the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Rowe. The Deputy and Mr. Burgess start on Saturday next to make a trip through the southern ranching district and will be absent about ten days; on their return the whole party will go west on a tour through British Columbia.

There was an immense crowd at the gymnasium last night to witness the long expected contest between White and Gorman. Two to one was offered on Gorman with but few takers. At 10:30 the men entered the ring; White had for his second Mr. Ross of High River, while Mr. MacDonald, of the Windsor House, took care of Gorman. The men fought nearly three hours. Gorman is the heavier man of the two and very quick on his feet but nevertheless White was too much for him and in the forty-third round he was knocked over the ropes and failed to come up before time was called. White was fighting at a disadvantage, his shoes were lost just before the time to commence and he had to enter the ring with one Indian rubber and one boot on; the crowd also appeared to favor Gorman. For the first six rounds it seemed that White was bound to lose, his opponent forced the fighting hard and has a terrible left hand. From the 7th to the 40th round it was a body's fight and it was impossible to say who had the advantage; but in the last three rounds White had it all his own way and forced his opponent into the ropes whenever he pleased. His last blow knocked Gorman over the ropes into the arms of his backers. Over $1,000 changed hands. It is a notable fact that Calgary men always seem to back a stranger, for what reason it is impossible to tell; a good many of them are carry this morning. The contest was a fair one throughout and both men showed great grit. It is probable they will meet again at an early date.
